

How Need is Determined

Financial need is determined by subtracting the expected family contribution (EFC)—as determined by the FAFSA—from the college's direct cost of attendance (COA). The difference between the college's direct cost of attendance and expected family contribution represents a student's financial need.